More Canning Equipment To Get Season Under Way BY PENNY SAVER

You eat what you can and what you can't eat, you can! Make sense to you? Good! Now explain it to me! On second thought, better give me time to tell you about the new additions to canning equipment counters, first.

Since my last amblings through the city, canning racks have made an appearance at 39 cents and up, in either the collapsible or solid frame. In two sizes, too, are aluminum collanders ranging in price from $1.50 to $2.19.

To presarve them that tarnips, Dogpatch style, you'll find a great supply of tins, now on hand. The No. 2½ tall are priced at $6.25 a hundred; No. 2, $4.85; No. 1, $4.75; No. 1 flat, $6.25; plain; half flat, and enamel lined, $4.50 a hundred. If it's the covers you need, they sell at a dollar a hundred for No. 2 and $1.30 for No. 2½. New glass lids are 24 cents the dozen.

cents the dozen.

To keep your precious ten fingers out of hot water, you'd appreciate a pair of metal utility tongs. Size No. 20 they are, and the price is 23 pennies. For a jelly bag and metal stand complete you'll put 49 cents on the counter and the clerk will wrap up the set.

All you need do now mom, is take a look at the vacant spots in the storage shelves because that tells the story of what the family liked best during the long winter months.

YOUR BABY AND MINE By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Since most mothers have to depend upon "sittlers" these days to take care of their small children, it is vastly important that the atter become familiar with this particular child.

It is in the interest of famil arizing the sitter with her small charge that a mother should take the time to write out a short history of the child, his likes and histikes, the way she handles him in ordinary behavior situations, the foods he eats, the toys he enjoys, what he can and can-not be allowed to do. If all of this, including the menu and the hours of sleep and play, is written in a notebook, it may be handed to successive sitters without the tiresomnecessity to sit down and tell the stranger all she needs to know about her small charge. The time may better be spent letting the sitter get acquainted with the child before the mother cause all adults do not have vas made hysterical for fou days after a prolonged session with a strange sitter. It was found, later, that she had man aged her charge by filling he with fear. One remark illus

Special Reward ΦΤΛ'ΛΛΛ

The Canadian Bankers' Association hereby offers a reward of $10,000 for the acrest and conviction, or for information leading to the arrest and conviction, of the person who entered the Bank of Toronto, Beaver Hall Hill Branch, Montreal, Que., on May 25, 1950, and, in his escape, by gunfire wounded the Branch Manager, Mr. S. G. Bickley, and fatally wounded R.C.M.P. Constable Alexander Gamman.

The Canadian Bankers' Association retains the right to approve or reject any claim for reward and, in the event of its approval of more than one claim, to divide the amount of the reward in such proportions as it may see fit between the claimants whose claims have been approved by it.

No claim for reward will be considered unless made in writing to the Secretary of the Canadian Bankers' Association, Montreal, within thirty days after the date of

This offer cancels and replaces the offer of a special award of $5,000 previously made by the Association.

Dated at Montreal, June 16, 1950.

Since Trans-Canada Airlines has been flying between here and Seattle it is often possible to get a unique view of Mount Rainier. When flying at 6,000 feet above a bank of clouds, the immense cone of snow rises out of the sea of cotton batting and glistens in the non-day sum. and friends with whem he had served in the Royal Navy to capes, bays, straits and mountains.

When Vancouver was in Puget Sound in May, 1792, Rainier was a captain in the Royal Navy. He had had outstanding successes by that time and later added to them. He also established a tremendous fortune.

CAPTURED PRIVATREE

According to the research work done by the late Capt. John F. Walbran and published in "British Coumbin Place Names," Capt. Rainler when in command of the sloop Ostrich in 1778, captured an American pitvateer after a vigorous action. He was wounded in the action in 1796 when he was a vice admiral and commander-in-chief of the East India Station, he served at the reduction of Trincomail and took possession of Amboyna, and Banda Neira. Banda Neira. The booty he collected in these actions formed the basis of a great fortune.

On returning from his post in midia after being there for 11 years. Rainier was sailing in Trident. On reaching St. Helena he found the China fleet of 39 ships, valued at year $75,000,000. The French were accling to intercept this heavily-liden fleet but Rainier took over and safely conducted the ships to British ports. It was the first convoy, of which he gave to the British government to reduce the national debt. Dr. Josiah Oldfield waxes indignant when he hears beayds criticized as unhygenic oditof-date. Elghy-sky-pear-old dietitian and essayist who wrote "The Beauty Aspect of Life and Health," was zentre of attraction at a recent party in London, given in honor of Reginald Reynolds and his latest book, "Beards," Some magnificent beavers put in an appearance, but the old doctor's was rated one of the best It went well with his lily of the valley buttonhole. Not everyone will agree with the aged doctor that hir suite adornments are an asset. Sieve Cochrane from Hollywood, for instance, found his beard played havoc with his dates.

ENVIED BY TACOMA

For some years a controversy swirled about this venerable peak swirled about this venerable peak because of tig name. Efforts were madely to have it changed from Rainier to Tacoma, mainly because the people of the Washington city were aware of the publicity value of such a move.

There was a feeling, too, that Rainier had been named after a hero of the Royal Navy, who had at one time captured an American

For years most people have regarded the "Mauritius" as the most precious item on the philatelic market, Admittedly, the catalogue lists them at £3.5% used or unused, and only recently a committee of experts met to decide whether a 4d. "Post Office" Mauritius found in an old stamp collection was genuine—but there are even more valuable stamps.

A 2-cents blue, issued in the Hawaiian Islands in 1831 is priced at £5.500 unused, and even used is worth more than the "Mauritius." The most rare and probably most valuable of all stamps, however, is the magenta-black one cent British Gulana, issued in 1856.

When on show, this remarkable piece of paper is usually guardied by two heavily-armed policemen.

An American specialist has valued the stamp at $50,000, but considering its history this would seem rather a fabulous sum.

FINDS LIFE LONELY

"I'm a successful man," he sighed,

Shave My Beard? No Sir

The story-of-bytis rarity began in 1873 (17 years after its offedial issue), when a boy, L. Vernon Naughan, was searching through an old family closet in Georgetown in the hope of finding enough stamps to buy some candy.

Among them he noticed one which was not ligited in his own album, and being a zealous collector he know the Guiana Postmaster had approached the Official Gazefte Printing Office in 1855 with the idea of having some make-shift stamps printed, because the usual shipment from Britain had not arrived, and stocks were getting low.—The actual printers, Baum and Dallas, soon had a number of inferior types ready, but these were found unsuitable for tropical conditions.

one-cent stamps had also been circulated. Young Vaughan was unable to find a space in his book for the stamp he had spotted, and in disgust ran next door to a Mr. McKinnon, whom he knew was a stamp collector. To his delight, McKinnon offered him six shillings for the apparently useless scrap of

Two extremely well preserved "Mauritus" id stamps were purchased in an Indian bazaar for £50. They are also in America valued at £15,000.

A very fine specimen of the 2d type, "Post Office" was discovered in an old album which had been thumbed for years without giving up its secret.

Years later, McKinnon sold his entire collection to a Liverpool dealer, Thomas Ridpath, for £110. The news of a fresh discovery soon spread to the Continent and the Marquis de Ferrari, a well-known collector, hurried from Paris to buy it at all costs. He caused a sensation by paying $750.

The Marquis intended to leave the stamp to the German Post Museum, but the war intervened, and afterwards the French Government confiscated the specimen.

In 1922 it was decided to auction the stamp, and hundreds of dealers, collectors and journalists hurried to Paris, where a bidding battle developed between Arthur Hindan American millionaire and a certain Mr. Burres, H.M. the King George VI was represented at the sale, but it soon became clear that the astronomical sung mentioned were beyond the means of most people.

The auctioneer's hammer came down at the call of 300,000 francs, and the spectators gazed round excitedly wondering who had made the last bid. To everyone's astonishment both Hind and Burres claimed the stamp.

ROPULATION CONCENTRATION

Because of favorable climate and soil, the world's populations long have been concentrated in northwest Europe and southeast Asia, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Those may be the French the tourists have seen—and will see again this summer and fall. Hundreds of thousands they don't see, however will be flocking to football games, watching the yearly six-day bike race, leaving work to cheer competitions in the bicycling "Tour de France," most grueling endurance test in the world, or taking part in sports themselves.

Off the boulevards, where the tourists walk, open-air swimming "beaches" dot the quays of the Seine in the heart of Paris. They'll all be doing a roaring business all summer with men and women who devote their lunch hour, on nice days, to swimming.

Last year the government voted a budget of about $7,000,000 for the country's sports program, which comes under the department of physical training in the Ministry of Education. has made possible is the establishment of 220 "physical re-education centres to combat the harm suffers by children in the years of under nourishment during and after the occupation. These centres put man than 15,000 physically deficient youngsters back on the road to health during the 1943-49 school year.

This year the requirement that a "sports certificate" be produced before elementary school graduation has been extended to the equivalent of American high school graduates too. This has built up sports enthusiasm among young women, as well as men. In 1949 there were more than 600,000 French ghis holding sports certificates, and 100,000 of them took part in organized competitions.

Sports clubs in commercial and industrial organizations are not required by law, but since liberation more than 1,270 such groups with 118,000 members have been formed. Football holds first place in French sports interest. There are something like 8,600 amateur football clubs, plus '781 professional groups, and the football federation counts 425,000 members. Backetball accounts for another 82,000.

You often hear a tennis coach saying "Joe would be a good player if he had better length to his shots." This means that Joe has shots." This means that Joe has developed a bad habit of returning the ball so that it lands too far away from his opponent's baseline. This means that his opponent will be rable to force the game all the time and can easily get to the net to finish off an attacking shot. Good length means keeping the ball deep in your opponent's court close to the base-line. Unfortunately, this is a point of strategy that is, sadly overlooked by the average player. Most players overlook it because that, like to play safe and hit well judde the base-line.

However, if you make a point of striving to keep a good length in your shots every time you play you will soon develop the skill and confidence you need to develop good length. Remember, there is no more important phase of tennis.

HENRY LABOUCHERE, the British journalist and statesman, was ejected from the Senate House for cribbing, reminiscens Thomas Thornley in Cambridge Memories. The Lighter Side of Long Ago—"and hailed before that most formidable of academic bodies, the Heads of Houses. The cheeky, chubby-faced boy, stood entirely unabashed in that dread presence, as he would have done before a synod of archangels. When one of his judges interrupted him in the middle of an eloquent harangue, he waved him down with a motion of his hand, saying, 'I shall have a word to say to that gentleman presently."

"Shortly after he had been found guilty and "sent down," the don who had charged him happened to look in at the gaming hall at Homburg. Labouchere, who was seated at the table, immediately sprang to his feet, and shaking him heartly by the hand greeted him as an old acquaintance on the strength of this one encounter."

The old riots between Town and Gown are gone, and the author is not sorry to have witnessed their disappearance. Other forms of humor have taken their place. There was, for example, the "Sultan of Zanzibar." The students planned one of the greatest deceits in the history of the University and Borough, by making arrangements on forged stationery for a state visit to Cambridge of "The Sultan of Zanzibar."

The Mayor was pleased; the Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge University, bewildered. Both replied that they would be privileged to receive the Sultan. So that stage was set. The school children were given a half-holiday; the town band turned

An students boarded the train at a small harnlet, 15 miles from Cambridge on the main line. Arriving in state, the "Sultan" and his retinue passed through the cheering curious crowds, held back by ropes and police, shook hands with the Mayor's family, with the Vice-C...ancellor and drove on a well-planned route to their hotel, where they excused themselves for several hours "for prayers."

E DESTROYED

There was, to quote, "a horrible lack of meritorious original dramas, playwrights seeming to lean more and more to adaptations of novels and old plays." From this pronouncement, authors with an inclination to the theatre and something worth saying, should take encouragement. For it is obvious that while there is not as much morey available for theatrical enterprises as in other years, good material is all the more likely to coax what there is from the tightly clutched packet-book of the Broadway "anget" and says Thornley, "Who can grudge to the 'Sultan' his pleasing sense of having accomplished something really worth doing as he was engaged in removing from his face and hands the last traces of a deceitful orient sun, in the seclusion of his college rooms?

"Or, who again can withhold all sympathy from those, who, from the windows of the New Court of Trinity, saw with delight a healthy crop of spring onions overtaking the newly sown grass, and shaping itself into letters that proclaimed openly and unblushingly what the phyrgian reeds had only dared to whisper about King Mida—that their ruter was an ass?"

"A cruder and less inspired joy was theirs who watched a little band of devotees clustering round

The situation, from the standpoint of the would-be actors and singers, is not so resy. The number of productions, for the third year in succession, has declined.
There were 63 altogether, 40 of which were dramatic offerings; 17 were musicals, including three Gilbert and Sullivan revivals which, incidentally, were failures. In the

HISTORIC RIFLE TAKES A TITLE

Show Will Lose Money Theatre Odds Are That By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

A ccording to professional theatre tradition in the American conment, June 1 begins a new theatrical year. On Broadway this means renewal of old contracts and new contracts for new players as switches are made in casts of current runs.

Any hope that next season will show an improvement in these figures seems dodbtful when one considers that only 11 out of the 63 productions made any profit! Due to high costs in the modern Americal upon these days, to come out on the right side of the ledger.

Actually, 19 productions could be fermed "his" on the basis of long runs, rave notices and S.R.O. assiliences. Even so, eight of them failed to show any profit. There is a gleam of hope in the report that five are possible money-makers, depending on future touring receipts, foreign and move rights.

And this simply emphasizes the fact that mency, in our civilization, is not only "the toot of all evil" but the root of all things! Man's creative force, goes down to defeat too often before the souliess power of this arch-dictator of the nations.

The beginning of a new year inevitably brings about a post mortum on the corpse, of the old; the findings in this particular instance are disturbing. The concensus of critical opinion is that 1949-50 was an inferior season from the point of view of quality of material produced.

In a few days, the Victoria Symphony Orchestra will make a last appearance for the summer. The sarling is to be the Bay Street Armouty; not, we hope everybody will note, the Memorial Arena! Let nobody be found battering at the Arena doors. Wednesday night, lest they be accused of not reading their newspaper!

FEW SHOWED PROFIT

The program, Hans Gruber tells us, has been made up of various requests that have come in, will be summery and light in mood and devoted to ballet and phases of the dance. One exception is the conducting number—the dynamic breathless finale of the Tschaikowsky Fourth Symptomy. All proceeds of this concert are to go to the Mayor's Fund for the Manitoba Flood Relief.

D. B. Knox, who collected thousands of anecdotes in his time, tells several amusing tales in his Laugh and Grow Fat. There is Lord Darling's impromptu to counsel who quoted the Lunacy Act:

Or his retort to the barrister who complained: "My Lord you allow

"I am afraid that is no reason why I should allow considerable longitude in cross-examination," retorted his lordship, and those who laughed loudest knew that the special weakness of this particular counsel was verbosity.

A prominent Liverpool lawyer tells of a boy who once applied at his office for work.

"Now, my son," I said, "If you come to work tor me, you will occasionally have to write telegrams and take down telephone messages, hence a pretty good degree of schooling is essential. Are you fairly well educated?" "I be," the boy replied.

Finally an Irish story. The Recordership of Dublin, a most important office, was once held by a very able but impetuous lawyer, the Rt. Hon. Frederick Falkiner. Here is a story about him: Once a counsel for the Treasury asked leave at the end of the case to recapitulate his points, but was informed that the court would no longer hear him. Nothwithstanding, he coolly proceeded as follows: "My first point is that your Lordship has no jurisdiction to make an order; my second is that any order that you may make will, be in excess of jurisdiction; and my third point is that any such order will be against all the evidence of the case!

Here the Recorder, in uncontrolable fury, broke out:
"My answer to your first point is Bah! My answer to your second point is Bah! And my answer to your third point is Bah!" The counts, undismayed, responded:
"My respectful answer to your first point is Bah! And my answer to your Lordship's answers is also monosyllabic; it is the word Boo!"

Hormone Powder Aids Tomato Pollenation

BY CECIL SOLLY

A T A TIME when the first tomato flower buds a set fruit, in this climate we experience a very in tion of temperature from day to night. Should the cially the first ones, drop off and fall to fruit, the tailed. To help the flowers to "set" properly, is quit shake the plant by rapping the stake. If this is a 2 and 4 p.m., the pollen is most readily dislodged an action ensues. ouds are ready to ery great fluctua-the flowers, espe-the crop is cur-squite easy. Just is done between and self-pollen-

Recently, a very great many gardeners have decided not to wait for the uncertain methods of Dame Nature. They now, quite success fully, use an artificial hormone powder. The material (napthalene-acetic acid) is sold under various brand names. All one has to do is to mix it according to directions and spray it on the flowers. Even the first flower cluster, which seldom sets maturally, will produce an almost 100 per cent set and, of course, a crop of much parlier formatoes.

The material should be used at regular intervals, so that every flower cluster as it comes out gets its "set" treatment. Not only does practically every one set, but the fruits are large fine-flowered, and entirely seedless.

There are three types of the affliction that is known as "blight" that attacks tomatoes in this area of the Northwest (situated between the Cascades and the ocean and from the Siskyous to the Fraser River).

The first one occurs around July 4.10 and is evidenced by a rapid inward curling of the leaves and a cessation of the growth of the plant. This is called early blight. The second, which generally appears during late July and early August, is curly top or yellow blight. It is first noticed by the leaves becoming "thickened" and roiled as well as brittle. They also turn yellow and purple veins develop in them. The growth is checked considerably when this disease develops in the plants. The third is generally the most troublescome and is called late blight. It affects tomatoes occasionally in this area and can be diagnosed by the purplishback mildewed areas on leaves and stems. Lesions spread and eventually the foliage will show blight. The fruit will also become disconcered by the presence of yellowish-brown water-soaked areas. Copper will control the late blight. There is also another so-called disease trouble which appears in early September and generally shows up about a week after a rainy period. It is known as blossomend rot be allowed to become powdery dry and then flooded with heavy irrigation.

The moisture content of the soil should be even throughout the season as much as possible. This will assist the controlling blossomend rot effectively. The soif to develops at the blossom end of the fruit. This is the most noticeable indication of this disease. The onions which require 115 days.

Between these extremes are other vegetables, which may take, 30, 40, 60 or 80 days to reach the size and quality which best fits them for table use.

In the early spring, these maturity rates are of less significance than later. Early varieties should always be sown for all and winter use.

As summer advances, however, naturity dates become more important, and before sowing any crop the gardener should make sate it has time to mature before whiter sets in.

Seed catalogues usually give the maturity date for each variety listed. From your local weather bipreau you can easily avoid or op's which have no chance to develop fully before winter comes.

Until June 15, however, there are few vegetables which cannot be sown with good chances of a crop.

Vegetable crops which should not be sown in June include peas, early radishes, lettuce, and spinach. All these require cool weather, and you may sow very early kinds in August, so they will mature in the autumn. Sweet corn is a crop for late sowing. Early kinds may be put in as late as July 1, and the finest corn is often prouded by late sown seed.

Quick maturing crops, include snap beans, beets, carrots, endivened and beans, beets, carrots, endivened as and radishes. The later you sow, the "earlier" should be the variety you sow.

HENRY PREE ANSWERS

a Our lor has no topsoil. What is the minimum of topsoil needed to sustain grass?

A—It is impossible to secure a permanent lawn with less than three inches of lowny topsoil. Mying coarse gravel, manure and other organic matter with the subsoil will provide air and water drainage and enable the gray roots to go deeper into the soil.

Q—The foliage on my very lovely garderia is thriving, but the buds are drying up. What can if do about it?

A—Gardenias are difficult in the average home because of the hold average home because of the hold water and the foliage sprayed daily with water. Once a month scratch and water into the soil, lots of sunlight—and the foliage sprayed daily with water. Once a month scratch and water into the soil a teaspoon of fertilizer strong in phosphorus.

age causes rapid spread of most diseases. The simplest and safest way to water tomatoes is by the underground system. Most good gardeners accomplish this by sinking a 2-lb. coffee can, up to its neck, in the ground about six inches away from each plant. Small holes are punched in the bottom and sides of the can, so that the water leaks slowly, but continuously into the surrounding soil. In hot weather, it may be necessary to refill the can three or four times a day. When fertilizer is to be applied, it is most satisfactory to place a small amount in the can once a week.

Many gardeners have reported very good results by using a small quantity of Epsom Salts (Sulphate off Magnesium) at intervals. Presistantly, the magnesium is needed by the plant's leaves to enable them to manufacture the needed food supplies for distribution throughout the plant, and to make it resistant to blight.

The old saying that "prevention is better than cure" applies directly to tomato blights. Whenever it appears, don't wait, hoping it will go away. Spray at the first indication of the disease with any good plant is used for rose bushes is excellent. Copper, termate, cuprocide or lysol, are all good materials, provided they are used at regular intervals.

Powdered Rubber May

Stretch Highway Life

For the rich men thereof are full of violence, and the sinhabitants thereof have spoken lies, and their tongue is deceitful in their mouth.

Micah 6:12. By DOUGLAS LARSEN

If you motor into the United States this summer, chances are you will aid an experiment which holds promise of revolutionizing
America's highways.

Certain sections of key highways around the country have been paved with asphalt which has been mixed with rubber. As you ride yeer these test sections, you'll probably never know it.

In everything give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ lessy concerning you.—I Thes. 5:18.

God is pleased with no music below so rauch as the thanksgiving songs of relieved widows and supported orphans; of rejoicing, comforted, and thankful persons.

It's an experiment that will take many years to finish, since the promised benefits will take a long time to prove. The great hope is that the use of rubber will reduce the cost of maintenance on the roads far below the initial cost of the rubber.

SUNDAY

O Israel, thou hast destroyed thyself; but in me is thine help.—Hosea

This additional cost is small, however, if it could result in a substantial cut in the highway maintenance bill.
